

The rent-growth screen · 2025→2028

The 110 largest US rental markets, ranked by fundamentals that historically precede rent growth. Built entirely on free public data; frozen before its outcome.

0.43

POOLED TAU ON FINALIZED DATA
random guessing scores about 0

+6.0 pp

TOP-10 EDGE PER COMPLETED WINDOW near zero in the 2020–22 shock

110

MARKETS RANKED
every ranking frozen before its outcome

The top 10

Rank	Metro	Score	Tier
1 (1-27)	Albany-Schenectady-Troy, NY	+0.54	Leading cluster
2 (1-28)	Reno, NV	+0.52	Leading cluster
3 (2-37)	Lancaster, PA	+0.45	Leading cluster
4 (12-76)	Urban Honolulu, HI	+0.43	Mid
5 (1-32)	Harrisburg-Carlisle, PA	+0.41	Leading cluster
6 (4-48)	Huntsville, AL	+0.41	Leading cluster
7 (2-38)	Dayton-Kettering-Beavercreek, OH	+0.39	Leading cluster
8 (5-59)	Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton, PA-NJ	+0.38	Leading cluster
9 (2-42)	Hartford-West Hartford-East Hartford, CT	+0.37	Leading cluster
10 (2-45)	Rochester, NY	+0.37	Leading cluster

Rank (90% range once measurement noise is accounted for) and tier; markets with overlapping ranges are roughly tied, and the tier, not the rank, is the durable claim.

Five gates, three failures, two passes

×	1.	2025 screen, five estimated inputs	74.8% · failed
×	2.	2025 screen, fresher jobs data	84.66% · failed, pulled
✓	3.	2024-vintage screen, one estimated input	95.5% · passed
✓	4.	2025 screen, income chained by state	96.6% · passed
×	5.	Mid-year 2026 screen, five months of data	82.7% · failed

Every fresher-than-finalized configuration faced the same pre-registered gate, one attempt each, outcome published either way.